

GREENWOOD CITY —

— Mrs. Callie Morgan, Correspondent —

The ocean is a great reducer of heat with its shifting winds so were fortunate to be on North Haven Island for ten days during the hot spell. We watched the successive lines of waves surging in with foam and weeds. Then at some high point in their advancement they melted into nothing. At times they seemed uncanny, I thought, "What is a wave anyway?"

As we lunched with our beach fire burning, sandpipers pursued the receding waves and then little by little retreated twinkling-footed from the incoming waves as it walked over a hot plate.

In the distance the ducks were bobbing about; as always adding sparkle to the waters. They knew what they were about at all times, lifting themselves upon a wave just before it crashed they'd dive or shoot up on the other side, always serene and enchanting.

Several loons came close in, giving brief glimpses of their pale forms beneath the water. They have sleek lines and float lightly on the waves; usually two in perfect proportion.

Most days we spent on the beaches from mid-morning until late afternoon. Long walks, fishing from the shore or from our small boat in the coves and harbors kept us interested. Mackerel fishing was good, clam digging gave us exercise and tide changing was fascinating.

At one spot while walking by the edge of a stone faced pier I was transfixed by the little rockweeds just below the water's surface. As the waves awayed forwards and back or hesitated for a moment, they danced a ballet, perfectly controlled to the rhythm of the waves. I presume these seaweeds are algae which are among the simplest of plants floating the world's oceans.

While circling a ledge I had a chance to observe and take pictures of the Harbor Seal. At one moment he was there peering at us with big, dewy eyes; then he slipped under water. As quietly as he disappeared he again surfaced as curious about us as we were about him.

One morning early, I climbed to the height of land near the house to gaze across the bay toward the main land. Mt. Battie and the Camden Hills. The ravens swept in over me and banked with a caw! They are twice the size of a crow and I heard the swish-swoosh of their wings as they turned. Over the trees they disappeared while again came the guttural call, haunting and more resonant. "Cronk-cronk."

Stranded in the early mists, a solitary fisherman slowly pulled his lobster traps.

Small birds at the edge of the woods were communicating in hissing voices and came close to see what I was about.

I stopped to look at the Bayberry bush with its stiff leaves curling up like horns.

The Sea Lavender was still in bloom and made a lovely bouquet.

ALBANY HUNT'S CORNER AND VICINITY

— Harlan Bumpus, Correspondent —

There will be no more church services until spring. We have appreciated Mrs. Carl Kingsbury driving from Rumford Point the last five Sundays to be our Supply Preacher.

Callers of Mrs. Nona Kingman have been Mrs. Isabelle Rolfe of North Waterford; Mrs. Esther Rugg; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Allen of North Lovell; Mr. and Mrs. Bennett of Norway; Mrs. Jennie Kimball and Harold Truman; Mrs. Marjorie Knight and baby; and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Allen and Wallace Allen of Lovell.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney McAllister

among the fall asters and other flowers I gathered.

One evening there was perfection in the sunset. In the west the sky was an intense sprit color. Against it the conifers, cathedral-like, stood out, all down to the Bay's edge. Clouds were scattered against the color while intense blue showed through. After the sun had disappeared the sky was like a stain of blood. Shadows on the sea were as dark as the distant islands.

Out across the unknown, called the gulls.

I had a feeling as if a conclusion had been reached. I waited; nothing happened. There was just a far reaching stillness. I turned and left it to its perfection.

Donna Morgan called on Ann Holt on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan returned home from North Haven on Saturday after a ten day visit with Mrs. Bertha Joyce. They went with Mr. and Mrs. Franze Mills.

A large moose enjoyed a swim in the pond near Clyde Morgan's one day this week. Several watched him as he leisurely made his way to the channel and then went ashore on the far side where he calmly took his time to travel on.

Miss Ann Holt was in Manchester, N. H., on Saturday and also called on Nancy Hutton at her home.

Mrs. Rena Bacon spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Leonas Holt and family.

Mrs. Marcia Johnson, Westbrook, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hayes Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hayes, Joy, Kevin, and Elmer Hayes, took the fall foliage ride by train from Portland to Island Pond, on Sunday.

BETHEL LIBRARY
"The Singular Case of the Multiple Deed" by Mark McShane. The author of the award-winning "Seance on a Wet Afternoon" conjures up the zaniest band of murderous misfits ever to confound England's forces of law and order.

"The Complaint Werewolf" and other tales of fantasy and science fiction by Anthony Boucher.

"Homeland," by Hal Borland. Twenty essays, each one treating a season of the year, the sequence covering the years 1964-1968. As always, Hal Borland makes us smell the woodsmoke in autumn, feel the snow in January, taste the sap in the buckets in early spring, glory in the perfection of a summer dawn and hear with a feeling of mystery the honking of the wild geese in migration or the barking of a fox at midnight.

Young People:
"The Pigeon Pair," by Elizabeth Ogilvie. Life in a crowded tarpaper shack did have its joys, but these were always shadowed by Papa's pride, Mama's day-dreaming, and each year, it seemed, another little mouth to feed. If it hadn't been for Ingrid and Greg's one crazy determination to buy back the beautiful, ancestral Snow home on the main road, there would have been no incentive to leave the back road "camp."

Junior:
"Mystery in the Ravine," by Carol Farley, Kipp's and Larry's curiosity gets them into much more of an adventure than they are looking for.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stearns in Rumford Corner Sunday. Mr. Foster also called on Mr. and Mrs. Truman Thurston.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Desloches visited Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Palmer in Mexico Saturday.

Victor Robinson returned home Monday from a week end visit with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stumans in Conway, N. H.

S. A. D. 44 SUPERINTENDENT ATTENDS DURNHAM, N. H. CONFERENCE LAST WEEK

Superintendent of Schools of S. A. D. 44, Robert J. Gerardi, attended a one-day conference on Planning, Programming, Budgeting, and Evaluating Systems on Sept. 24 in Durnham, N. H. Sponsored by the New England School Development Council, the program was led by the internationally renowned systems consultant, Dr. Harry J. Hartley.

The conference focused on PPBES as a clear and practical approach to school program planning and as a major step in the direction of achieving accountability in all areas of school business. The conference was attended primarily by superintendents and school board members.

Head of the Division of Educational Administration at New York University, Dr. Hartley also serves many other organizations as a PPBES consultant and is author of "Educational Planning-Programming-Budgeting: A Systems Approach" now in its third printing.

Dr. Robert F. Alloto, superintendent of schools in Pearl River, N. Y., and J. Anton Jüngher, assistant superintendent for business in Pearl River spoke on the practical aspects of initiating a PPBES system.

The New England School Development Council is a non-profit educational organization based in Newton, Mass. Supt. Gerardi said that a PPBES approach would be a really honest way to approach our citizenry for needed appropriations and for achieving accountability in all areas of school business.

"Since our resources are finite and our requests infinite, we need to establish priorities; develop our programs on these priorities, and evaluate our programs. While this is not a panacea I believe it will increase public support of our educational programs," Gerardi said.

NEW BOOKS

AT BETHEL LIBRARY

"God is an Englishman," by R. F. DeKlerk, author of our most popular books—"A Horseman Riding By" "The Green Gauntlet," "The Avenue," and "Mr. Sermon."

"A Bird in the House," by Margaret Lawrence—a gift from Mrs. R. B. Tibbets. With a directness and simplicity that move and stir our own memories, the author makes felt the vulnerability of childhood and the effects of time (the depression thirties) and place (a small town in Manitoba), and of a close knit family upon the heart-breaking, joyous process of growing up.

"Puppet on a Chain," by Alistair MacLean. This thriller has just been on the best-seller list for weeks.

"Family Portrait," by Catherine Drinker Bowen. Here, the author turns her writer's eye upon her own family, the Drinkers of Philadelphia.

"Touch of Wilderness" by Lew Dietz. In this informal collection of essays about Maine and its people Lew Dietz draws a warm and compelling picture of his home state—its coasts, woods and streams.

"Dellie," by Ruth Bradley. From the opening scene at Dellie's wedding to the closing chapter, this is an inspiring, true story of an indomitable woman standing up to the worst that life could offer and emerging victorious.

BARRACKS & AUXILIARY TO MEET

The World War I Barracks and Ladies Auxiliary will meet for a 6:30 supper at the home of Edith Danforth in East Bethel on Tuesday, Oct. 6. The business meeting will begin as usual at 8 o'clock.

OXFORD COUNTY CONSERVATION AND LAND INVENTORY

Donald T. Dinmore, chairman of the "Maine Conservation Needs Inventory" committee, has pointed out that Maine has limited but adequate resources to meet the needs of our society only if the use of our resources are carefully planned and developments are directed onto land areas where soils are suitable for the uses.

This appears to be equally true of Oxford County.

The estimated land uses for Oxford County are: 44,000 acres of cropland which includes hay and pastures that can be plowed; 10,000 acres in non-tilled pasture land; 1,147,000 acres of commercial forest land; 26,000 acres of non-commercial cover; 12,000 acres in farm use, such as homesteads, roads and non-commercial; 25,000 acres not in farm use, such as roads, power lines, picnic sites, etc.

This inventory indicates that over 10% of the county's total land is suitable for crops, etc. and 20% is suitable for septic sewage noting that not all septic systems are on suitable areas.

As a large percentage of soils are suitable for tree growth 75% for hardwoods and 88% for pine, there is a good opportunity to continue a forested county. Oxford County soils are definitely suited for Recreation—42% for seasonal camps or cottages; 18% for pond building; and 40% for ski slopes with rugged terrain.

Thus Oxford County appears to have a good variety of land resources to not only maintain our present uses but many opportunities to expand many uses and still have a quality environment.

Soil and land information is available to anyone through the Oxford County Soil & Water Conservation District Office in Market Square in South Paris.

TELSTAR PHYSICS TEACHERS PARTICIPATE IN HARVARD PROGRAM

The Physics teachers of Telstar Regional High School were among 24 Physics teachers invited to participate in a special program at Harvard this past summer. Timothy Kersey and A. James Fiske have been teaching a new curriculum project in physics for several years and were invited to become master teachers whereby they would teach their fellow physics teachers how to teach Harvard Project Physics. For the past 15 years enrollment in physics has been declining sharply and high school students have been choosing a variety of other subjects in order to avoid taking the rigorous physics which is mathematics oriented for engineers and scientists. Harvard Project Physics is designed to appeal to a wide range of interest in students ranging from the scientist to the philosopher, historian, sociologist. The course is so designed that it is not necessary, for all students to learn the same thing, nor to perform the same tasks.

The summer at Harvard was designed to improve the competency of both men not only the content matter of the course but also in the ability to communicate with their fellow teachers. Seven weeks were spent planning how to present the program to other teachers as well as actually presenting the course to volunteer teachers from the Boston area. These teachers in turn taught a select group of students at Cambridge High and Latin School and the results were observed by Mr. Kersey and Mr. Fiske, in order to determine the effectiveness of their teaching the experimental teachers. Following the intensive summer program Mr. Kersey and Mr. Fiske were certified by Harvard as being qualified to teach the in-service institute to fellow physics teachers.

Arrangements were then made with the State Department of Education of New Hampshire to conduct an orientation program for New Hampshire physics teachers with the cooperation of the Holt, Reinhart and Winston Publishing Company, publishers of Project Physics. Sixteen participants were enrolled and attended a one-week indoctrination program conducted at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.

The week's program saw teacher participants actively involved in performing laboratory experiments experiments expected of students as well as being exposed to the physics contents of the program and the philosophy of the study of Physics. Three all-day Saturday sessions will be held throughout the academic year in order to cover the entire course. Following this, the New Hampshire State Department of Education will issue four re-certification credits to the teacher participants.

Mr. Kersey and Mr. Fiske hope that this will be the first of several orientation programs conducted by them. They anticipate holding a similar program next year in the State of Maine. Often asked, what's so special about Harvard Project Physics these gentlemen have merely to point to the increased enrollment in the Physics program at Telstar High School. Two years ago fourteen students were taking physics; this current academic year sees seventy-two students enrolled. That's what's so special about the course!

dressings to exclude air and prevent contamination. Cold applications are not recommended. Get the victim to a physician or hospital as soon as possible.

Lundberg said that much of the tragedy and suffering caused by fire each year could be prevented if families will follow a few simple rules. Pointing out that smoking is the cause of many home fires, he added:

"Don't smoke in bed; don't extinguish smoking materials in wastebaskets; don't smoke near flammable liquids such as gasoline and paint thinner; don't smoke or light matches in attics, closets, or confined places near clothes, paper or other combustibles; use your car ashtray while driving and be sure the ashes are cold before throwing them away."

"Keep matches out of the reach of children."

"Proper housecleaning and repair of electrical appliances can also reduce fire potential in the home. Throw away rubbish in attics, closets, basements, garages and yards,

Store gasoline, kerosene and flammable cleaning fluids in safety cans, and don't use such fluids to start fires. Paints should be kept in tightly closed metal containers and away from heat.

"All appliances should be checked annually and worn-out equipment and wiring replaced. Heaters, stoves and smoke pipes should be installed away from combustible walls and ceilings. Use proper fuses and don't overload circuits. Before extinguishing an electrically-caused fire with water, pull the plug or shut off the current."

"Keep a fire extinguisher readily accessible in the house, and keep a garden hose handy near a faucet for ready use."

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown arrived Sunday in Bradenton, Fla., for the winter after spending the summer at their home in Bethel.

Word has been received by Kathryn Ramsell that her sister, Mrs. Elwyn Storey, was admitted to the Jolebrook, N. H., Hospital last Monday for observation and treatment. Cards from her friends in Bethel would be appreciated.

WOODSTOCK

Seventh-day Adventist Church

Nearly four centuries have passed since our country was settled by God-fearing men and women, who fervently put their homes from the wilderness and founded on a belief in God and faith in His Holy Word.

After their homes were built the next to erect was the church and then the school, with the Bible, in some instances being the only text book.

These schools produced men of sterling integrity who steered our country through times of difficulty and guided its growth to become the richest and greatest nation to the world. God has signally blessed America because of her religious freedom to all.

Years passed and in came modern education with no place for God. The Bible has become to many, a silly myth and has finally been banned from reading in the public schools. This was brought about primarily by the work of an avowed atheist, Madalyn Murray O'Hair.

Recently Mrs. O'Hair obtained 22,000 signed letters protesting the decision of the Astronauts to read as a Christmas message a passage from the Bible, from their spacecraft while orbiting the moon in December, 1968.

The plan to present these letters

GO AHEAD PTA

Go Ahead PTA held its first meeting of the season on Sept. 22 with a good attendance. Mrs. Tripp's fourth grade won the banner.

Since last year's membership contest was so successful, it was voted to run another this year.

State convention will be held Oct. 23-24 in Waterville. The PTA will send four members if anyone wishes to attend.

It was announced that the group would sponsor a Halloween party again this year; plans to be announced later.

A report was given on the swimming lessons sponsored by the PTA during the summer. These were very well attended and proved to be very successful.

After the business meeting, Mr. Johnston, school principal, introduced the teachers and spoke briefly about the problem of overcrowding in the classrooms. He stated that the upper floor of the Woodstock school was presently being investigated to see if those rooms could be used in the future. This year's building enrollment is 177, with more anticipated for next year.

Meetings are held the fourth Tuesday of each month. All parents and friends are urged to attend.
